Very short was fun ran good, would like to have more game to play. Had to run this game with SteamVR turned off. When I got it running there was no sound. Tried with my exxternal DAC, HTC and soundcard on my motherboard, but no sound. The gameplay seemed OK, but with no sound it's really hard to judge. Still, with technical problems like this I can't recommend it.. Had to run this game with SteamVR turned off. When I got it running there was no sound. Still, with technical problems like this I can't recommend it.. Unfortunately I can't review the gameplay as the game will not run on my vive. :( Sad face. Look forward to seeing this game working. Push an update guys! UPDATE: Ok so the game is no longer showing up in my VR list. I wish I knew what that meant. UPDATE2: Turn off SteamVR, it works, sorta, no sound. But at least now I can shoot zombies like I'm the hero of my own silent film. UPDATE3: After 15 minutes of gameplay, it is over. You get what you pay for.. Beat it in 17 minutes will probably play again. It's a short game But it's got a house of the dead vibe with enemies have hit targets and attack patterns so it's pretty fun. 2 guns don't make any sound. Why? I just use the one that does. It's got unlimited ammo anyway.. check out gameplay and impressions here this is a nice looking arcadey shooter. it's fun, though the rounds are VERY short. this is a very good intro-to-VR type game to show off to someone just trying VR for the first time. the aiming is easy, the rounds are short, and it's low pressure for a zombie game. as of right now though, you will not be able to start this in steamVR. you'll have to close down steamVR if you've got it running, and start the game on it's own. the audio is also a bit wonky. the first time i got it running it didn't have audio, but i shut it down and started it back up and it was there (note, there is no audio during the menu screen, only during the rounds) the graphics are pretty slick, and have a nice cartoony style to them. this game is not scary at all which may be good or bad news, i guess. this is not the type of game you will be spending hours in, but like i said, it's good for showing off VR, and only costs $3..
